of these things are necessary to a great deal of happiness in this world and the next. It is therefore necessary to be careful of our health and to keep our minds from being troubled with vain
 thoughts and desires.
 We must also be careful of our manners and
 of our company. It is necessary to be kind
 and merciful to all men, and to be
 temperate in all things.
 We must also be
 diligent in our
 studies, and in the service of God.
 It is necessary to be patient and to bear
 our afflictions with a good heart. We must also be
 diligent in our prayers, and in the study of the scriptures. It is necessary to be humble and to be of a lowly mind. We must also be careful
 of our speech, and
 of our actions.
 It is necessary to be diligent in our duties, and to be faithful in our promises. We must also be careful of our time, and of our money. It is
